HORROR OF DROWNING
IS A POSSIBILITY

Were Working in the Pennsylvania Tunnel When the Cave-in Occurred Yesterday—Fresh Air Is Being Forced Down to Them.

New York, Dec. 19.—Half a hundred men are working like Trojans this morning in an attempt to rescue a number of men who are entombed in the Pennsylvania railroad tunnel in Long Island City. The exact number of entombed men is now known. The railroad officials say that there are only two, but the police state that there are six or eight. To the horror of the situation is added the possibility that the men may be drowned by the rush of water from Newton creek when the tide reaches the highest point. The men can be heard rapping in the iron pipe that runs down into the tunnel.

The men were caught in a cave-in in the working shaft of the tunnel under the East River, under sixty feet of earth. The rescuers are trying to drive a shaft before the men are suffocated or starved to death. At intervals, the rappings were heard during the day and night, and were still heard this morning. Fresh air is being supplied the men and it is hoped that they have taken refuge on some ledge and will be taken out safely if the rescuers reach them before the day is out.

Mrs. Jennie Dennis of Barre is visiting her mother, Mrs. Kate Lamberton and Mrs. Helen Loveland, for a few days.

Rev. S. G. Lewis intended attending the regular meeting of the K. of P. lodge here Monday evening, but the death of one of his brother ministers, L. E. Knapp, called him to attend the funeral on Tuesday, necessitating his return home Monday.

Earl Dennis visited friends here over Sunday. Mr. Dennis is one of our boys of former years, now one of the most promising young men of Barre. He is an artist, both with brush and pen, and musical instrument.

WILL MISS THE FACE OF ONE MEMBER

Said Morris Nathan, as He Left to Rejoin "The Shepherd King" Company at Birmingham, Alabama.

Boston, Mass., Dec. 19.—Morris Nathan, lover of Susan Geary, the victim of the "suit case" tragedy, has left for Birmingham, Ala., to rejoin "The Shepherd King" company, in his former capacity as "privilege boy."

The members of the company are planning to extend to Nathan a hearty greeting. The boy was immensely popular with all hands, from Wright Loomer down. They called him the "pet" of the company, and throughout the weeks of suspense and after his arrest they stood by him loyally. When they received word that the Suffolk grand jury had returned "no bill" against him, the members of the fast were his congratulations, and no sooner was the case cleared up and the boy's innocence established than the management sent word to Nathan that his old place was open for him.

"I am anxious to meet all my associates again," said Nathan, "and to thank them all in person for their kindness and loyalty during that horrible suspense. There will be one face missing, though—poor Susan's. My mother doesn't like to have me go away again, after all the trouble I have had, but I think my prospects in the theatrical field are good. At any rate, I am going to do my best to win success."

NOT A TRACE FOUND
OF SIX AUTOMOBILISTS

They Plunged Over a Precipice Two Hundred Feet High Into River Doure —Accident Happened at Oporto, Portugal.

Oporto, Portugal, Dec. 19.—Six automobiles, while automobiling here, plunged down a steep hill and over a precipice two hundred feet into the river Doure.
No trace has since been found of any member of the party.

It will doubtless take time, but there are those who want to begin, and to form the nucleus of a higher schooling than can now be obtained by citizens and their children. It is intended to eventually bring this matter prominently before the public in all of the large cities so that it may be a call to every man, woman and child to promote and uplift these aims and practical skilled work.

should and can be natives of Vermont.

Much has been done in the old Rutland bank building, repairs and alterations toward converting it into a structure for the bringing out of originality in ideas and their expression on canvas and marble. It is planned to interest five men and employ the institution with $500,000 as a fund from which expenses may be paid. It is proposed to make the institution and its teaching free to any pupil from any part of the world. Classes in drawing and painting are now held there weekly.

MAY HAVE NEW INDUSTRY.

Northfield Board of Trade Have a Proposition for a State Quarry.

Northfield, Dec. 19.—A special meeting of the Northfield board of trade was held yesterday afternoon at three o'clock at the office of M. D. Smith in the Mayo building, to consider a proposition to organize a company to be known as the National Black Slate company. The quarry to be operated are on the Almon farm, east of the village, and what were known as the Capital State quarries. Outside parties have considered their willingness to place $10,000 to operate the quarry, providing J. E.
Almon can get subscriptions amounting to $12,000 to equip the plant with up-to-date machinery.

A TERRIFIC
EXPLOSION

Kills Three and Injures Many Others

IN NEW YORK EXCAVATION

Dynamite Was Being Used in Digging Cellar for a Store Building and It Went Off Prematurely—
The Results.

New York, Dec. 19.—By the premature explosion of dynamite, which was used in excavating for Burt and Co.'s new store on 34th street early today, three men were killed and a dozen persons were injured. The shock of the explosion was terrific. The men who were working in the excavation were knocked from their feet. One man was thrown from the roof of an adjoining building, and two others were found nearly covered with rock and debris. Their faces were so mutilated that identification was impossible.

The head of one body is missing, while the arms and legs were blown from others. The explosion was caused by a drill striking a forgotten charge of dynamite.
The excitement among the guests in the dining room of the Waldorf Astoria, directly opposite, nearly resulted in a panic. James J. Rooney, foreman for the contractors, has been arrested, charged with criminal negligence. Two of the victims have been identified, one as John Jurup, the other Brancilio Calogoro.

RAN AWAY SIX TIMES.

Eugene Patten of Rutland Found in Burlington Yesterday.

Burlington, Dec. 19.—Eugene Patten, the 14-year-old son of Patrick Patten of West Rutland, who seems to have a mania for running away from his home, was sent back last evening on the 10:30 train by Chief Russell, instructions having been received from his father. Patten was found in a box car in the Rutland freight yards yesterday and brought to the police station. He told Chief Russell many stories and it was only after considerable difficulty that his home address was found. The authorities in and around Rutland have been looking for the boy for the past two days. He, however, says that he did not leave home until Sunday. He admitted that this was his sixth attempt to run away.

HOPE TO DEVELOP
SCULPTORS IN VERMONT

Move Is Made to Start an International Modeling School in Rutland to Be Open to Students from All Parts of the World.

Rutland, Dec. 19.—Powerful forces are at work to establish in Vermont an institution of international scope and importance, in the practical art, paintings and sculpture, the study of design in marble and in the appreciation of the beautiful in form and color. This institution will be located in the old Rutland bank building opposite the high school on Center street and the promoters are philanthropic people. Because Rutland is practically the marble center of Vermont, this city has been selected as the most desirable location for an institution of this kind without limitation to the scope of its work and influence.

SICK PRISONER PARDONED.

Walter Bruce of St. Albans Had Tuberculosis at State Prison.

Windsor, Dec. 19.—Gov. C. J. Bell made a flying visit to the state prison yesterday, stopping over one train on his way to Rutland to attend the funeral of Gen. W. W. Ripley, which will be held in that city today.

The parents and other relatives of Walter Bruce of St. Albans, a convict who was sent from that city last April, for the robbery of a watch, on a three to five years' sentence, were visiting him yesterday and he will be released from prison today. He will accompany his parents back to St. Albans on the afternoon train.

Waiting for His Return.

on the midnight train for parts unknown, and his boarding mistress is awaiting his return to this city. Mrs.

HOLIDAY FRONT IS SHOWN BY BARRE STORES

The Local Merchants Are Prepared to Handle a Big Trade During the Next Few Days Before Christmas.

The stores of Barre have now taken on their holiday appearance and are filled with goods for the holidays. Business today started out with considerable rush.

Union Clothing Store.

The Union Clothing company's window represents an alabaster fane over the roofs of a city and scattering broadcast a great assortment of Christmas presents, such as neckties, mufflers, fancy arm bands, fancy suspenders, handkerchiefs and a great many other articles.
By stepping inside one may secure the duplicates of any of these articles, as well as many more, as they carry a full line of clothing and gentlemen's furnishings.

Moore & Owens.

Moore & Owens have in their windows a large showing of articles suitable for Christmas gifts. In the south window are masses of neckwear, such as fine, beautiful silk scarfs and mufflers.
The line of this is not last, but it contains many which would make nice presents. In the north window is a large line of bath robes, house coats and smoking jackets. Their line of these comfortable garments is full and they can show a great assortment of suits and colors from which to pick.
These hustling clothing men carry a large line of every article of men's wearing apparel and can offer valuable suggestions to Christmas shoppers.

Veale & Knight.

Veale & Knight have decorated their store and windows very attractively. In the north window a little girl is represented as sitting expectantly before the fireplace on Christmas eve, waiting for old Santa to come down and deck the Christmas tree, which is nearby. Suddenly, the fellow appears, coming down the chimney, and the girl is so surprised that she puts out her hands in astonishment. The south window contains samples of staple dry goods under a canopy of handkerchiefs. The store itself is decorated with small Christmas trees lighted with colored incandescent lamps. The whole store presents a very attractive appearance.

A. P. Abbott & Co.

The window of Abbott's Daylight store is emblematic of the business of that enterprising store, something is "always moving." At the back of the south window are three large wheels neatly decorated with white handkerchiefs and colored stars. These wheels continuously revolve. In the front part of the store is the shape of six pillars in green and white, and they two revolve. Between the pillars are shown elegant fancy articles, such as Mexican work and beautiful embroidery, as well as furs and other useful and ornamental articles. The effect of the revolving decorations is striking, as the moving scene, which is made up of bright tints. The north window is no less tastefully decorated, but the idea is different from that of the other window.
It is in the form of a room, in which is an elegant display of ladies' dresses, as fur-lined coats, boas, etc. The

A. A. Smith & Bro.

"What an elegantly arranged window A. A. Smith & Brother have! It is what is being said by nearly every one who looks at it. If you can find something in their window to give to your gentlemen relatives and friends, it will be strange; for there are samples of nearly every article of furnishing goods which a man needs. At the bottom of this in the store is an immense display of fancy arm bands and fancy suspenders, with a back ground of all sorts of silk mufflers. At each corner are samples of silk-lined, sole-leather suit cases, topped off with fur-lined gloves. At the back of the window a rack has been erected, in which are samples of every kind of neckwear, such as silk handkerchiefs, about all of which are samples of a window as there is in the city, and shows as large an assortment of the most appropriate gifts for men as can be found in Vermont.

Homer Pitts.

In the windows of Homer Pitts' dry goods store you will see each day a new suggestion in Christmas gifts. The background and setting of the windows are not changed, but each day a display of some article is made in the two main departments of the store. The display of ladies' suits, coats, fur, etc. In the store a couple of twenty clerks is glad to offer every assistance in picking out gifts. There is a great diversity of fancy articles and a showing of hand-painted China by Mrs. Cummins of Montpelier, as well as every article usually carried in a large city dry goods store.

Frank McWhorter.

Frank McWhorter is better prepared to serve the Christmas buyer than ever before. He is located in his new store in the Blanchard building, which is said to be one of the finest clothing stores of Boston. In this convenient home of men's equipment there is every commodation for the public. By dropping into this store a moment you may be able to solve very easily the question: "What shall I get him for Christmas?" Here is every article in clothing and gentlemen's furnishings for which a man could wish. There are too numerous to mention more than a few, such as neckties, of which a man never has enough; handkerchiefs, which are always acceptable; mufflers, which he surely needs if he lives in this zone, smoking jackets and elegant fur-lined coats. Then too, there is the children's department which is the delight of every mother.
Just drop in and look around.

At Historic Ideal Book Store one may find a great array of the latest books, as well as all the standard works. Be-rides his large line of books he has put in a large line of specialties, such as fancy stationery, calendars, post cards, as well as many useful articles, such as music boxes and rolls, ladies leather wrist bags, fountain pens, toilet sets of all descriptions, some three-piece sets with elegant silver mountings, other sets in leather cases to fit a man's pocket; then, too, a year's subscription to some of the standard magazines which are carried here is a nice present. In the short time that Mr. Harris has been in business here, he has built up a large trade and a wide circle of friends by his pleasant manner and straight business methods.

Barre Book Store.

At the Barre Book Store is to be found almost any book which one could want. Also Mr. Martin carries a complete line of stationery, fountain pens, burned wood specialties, post cards, post card albums, beautiful Christmas cards and calendars. Mr. Martin has several extra clerks during the holidays, so one need have no trouble in finding what one is looking for.

PROVIDENT ACTUARY'S FIGURES.

Premiums, $44,533,671; Payments, $25-309,823.

New York, Dec. 19.—Henry Moir, actuary of the Provident Savings Life Insurance Society was the first witness before the Insurance Investigating Committee yesterday. He presented a statement showing the amounts received by his society in premiums from policyholders to Jan. 1, 1905, to be $44,533,671, and its payments to policyholders to be $25,309,823. The society's admitted assets for the protection of policyholders he said, were $7,936,198. Of this he said $7,144,431 was the legal reserve.
The difference between assets and legal reserve ($741,767) was the surplus after Dec. 31, 1904.

The Vaughan Store.

The Vaughan Store is very attractive in its holiday garb and is a veritable delight for lady shoppers. Mr. Vaughan has put in a great deal of work on the trimming of his store and the effect of the red, green and white inside decorations is very pleasing. The counters, show cases and extra tables are covered with an extraordinary showing of ladies' fancy neckwear, handkerchiefs, embroidery and such things as lady delight to receive for Christmas presents. The windows are lighted by colored incandescent lamps and are filled with a wonderful display of fancy and staple dry goods. An increased force of clerks is kept busy waiting on the Christmas shoppers.

Perry & Camp.

Perry & Camp have a very pleasing window in their dry goods store. In the background are articles wound with white, covered with holly. Large clusters of holly are placed neatly about the window on elegantly embroidered articles, such as bureau covers, centerpieces, dainty pieces of lace and other such goods. The main space of the window, however, is given over to a showing of beautiful sets of furs, which are very appropriate Christmas presents. Inside the store one will find a complete line of staple dry goods as well as the usual line of fancy articles, such as children's dolls, ladies' neckwear, table linen, center pieces and many other beautiful things.

F. H. Rogers.

F. H. Rogers' window may give people looking for gifts for men a few ideas.
In it are shown some of the delectable pieces of neckwear ever shown in this city. Their line of both ties and scarfs is very attractive. The window also contains some valuable umbrellas, several elegant house coats, as well as many small articles, such as arm bands, fancy suspenders and other articles. Mr.
Rogers' store is as thoroughly equipped a clothing store for its size as one will find and one would do well to call there before deciding on gifts for gentlemen friends.

Olive E. Branch, counsel for Kimball verdict was returned by a jury early in the present term of superior court, fore Judge Peaslee in superior court Monday for judgment on that verdict, and Jan. 20 was set as a tentative date for a hearing on the motion.

by the court, would depend upon whether or not the record of the case is in

JUBILEE CELEBRATION
CONTINUED TODAY

Great Outpouring of People Filled St.
Augustine's Church in Honor of Fr. W. J. O'Sullivan.

Priests, prelates, bishops and other high dignitaries gathered in St. Augustine's church at Montpelier today in honor of the twenty-five years priesthood of Rev. W. J. O'Sullivan, pastor of the church, while the audience of the huge church was crowded to the doors. High mass in of rare occurrence in the church and high mass before so many officials of the Catholic church is still more rare, there being about fifty in attendance. Among those was Rt.
Rev. J. S. Michael of Burlington, and also Canon George M. LaFollette of Montpelier.

After a special programme of singing, there were addresses, one in English by Rev. D. J. O'Sullivan of St.
Albans, brother of the man in whose honor the jubilee was held, and one in French by Canon LaFollette. The former spoke from the subject: "He that is mighty hath done great things in Me; Holy is His name." Fr. O'Sullivan said that although such celebrations as this are not provided for by the church, they were proper. He spoke of the work done by the church in Montpelier, and the prospects of the church. Canon LaFollette, who was a college classmate of the honored priest, gave him a high compliment, and then told of ordination services in Canada and in Vermont.

After the celebration of high mass the clergy were the guests of the St. Vincent De Paul society at a banquet, which was held in the Knights of Columbus hall.
The greater part of the afternoon is to be given over to speaking by the various priests. This evening the jubilee will come to a close with a public meeting in St. Augustine's church, to which all are invited.
